Quadrennial Old English May Day

ld English May Day

The dark green of the pines, stately sentinels of the campus, the lighter tints of the graceful willow trees, their leaves like tresses waving gently in the breeze, scented with the delicate perfume from blossoming pear and dogwood, the soft areen turf which blankets the rolling terrain — all this is Earlham's springtime beauty. But every four years there is an added symphony of color, and against this natural setting comes to life all the picturesque pageautry of an Old English May Day, symbolizing that entire body of tradition which vitalizes Earlham through the years. The culmination of months of planning, characterizing that spirit of friendship and cooperation for which Earlham is remembered, this celebration highlights every student generation.

And so, in this book which preserves for future pleasure the panorama of our life at Earlham, it is appropriate that we should place first in our memoirs a description of the event which to us was the most outstanding...

"The Queen. enthroned near the May Pole, watched the dances, games. contests, and sports which lasted on through the day, with bold Robyn Hoode as her lord . . ."

May Queen = Marjorie Baker Robyn Hoode = Robert Rollf

"..., and village folke all adorned ...themselves ...with spring flowers and frolicked to the woods, where stilt walkers forgot their peasant stolidity in the hilarity of the frolic."

One of the most beautiful and charming customs in the days of good Queen Bess was that of the merry revels which, beginning on the eve of the first of May symbolized a joyous response to the approaching summer. As the witching hour of midnight neared, country folk and villagers alike cast aside their cares to form a happy throng of revelers, roaming the darkened forests in search of the most stalwart tree from which to carve their Maypole—a worthy symbol of the renewed freshness of the countryside. Adorned with garlands of spring flowers, laughing and frolicking, the country lasses and lads, shepherdesses and milkmaids, chimney sweeps and gypsies, bakers and pedlars, hawkers and village folk—all joined in the procession to the village green with the giant Maypole borne by gaily bedecked oxen. Before the first rays of sun scattered the glistening dew drops, maidens stooped to bathe their brows with the fresh nectar of the dew—a sign of the purification which the festival symbolized.

The loveliest and most beautiful maid of the village was acclaimed Queen of the May and crowned with a wreath of forest flowers. Enthroned in majesty, she watched the merrymaking and the dances—the Morrice Men, whose dance drove off the witches waiting to harm the growing crops; the folk dances of Sellinger's Round and Gathering Peascods; the rollicking hobby horses and the antics of the stiltwalkers.

All through the day the happy revelers participated in games and contests, forgetting the responsibilities and routine of their daily lives. Twilight came and fires were lit, around which the villagers gathered to feast and watch the plays which were as much a part of Old English tradition as the ballads which they sang. At the midnight hour, with fires dimmed and the end of the festival at hand, the merrymakers wended their ways homeward.

Rich in English heritage, Earlham has for a period of sixty-six years presented a May Day festival. Each celebration since 1875 has witnessed variations and improvements, including the use of music in the festival, the addition of male characters in 1902, and finally, in 1906, the inauguration of the quadrennial Old English May Days. In these pageants, every attempt is made to capture the atmosphere and spirit of gaiety which characterized the original celebration at the time of Queen Elizabeth. Students and faculty alike don the picturesque garb of village and court and for the day the natural beauty of the campus is enhanced by all the colorful variety of the festive scene.

Five hundred costumed characters this year made Earlham's May Day unique not not only as the largest celebration of its kind, but as the only such event in the country, Bryn Mawr's festival having been indefinitely postponed. That the news value of such an event was recognized was evidenced by the wide coverage given it in newspapers of surrounding cities. Those who were beyond traveling distance or otherwise unable to attend found enjoyment in the radio broadcasts from the scene of the pageant, both WLW of Cincinnati and WHIO of Dayton utilizing mobile units to carry a program of May Day merrymaking.

Everyone but the weatherman cooperated to stage the performance on May 9, but despite cold winds and a dark sky, the carefree spirit of the actors and the enthusiasm of the audience overcame any disappointment which might have been occasioned by Nature's capriciousness.

Comstock Field was once again transformed into a village green, and some 2800 people found themselves in the midst of a merry scene of Old England. Preceding the pageant, "Prof. Ed" Trueblood, Honorary Director of this year's May Day, escorted to a place of honor Miss Elizabeth Foulke, organizer of Earlham's first May Day, and attendant to Earlham's first Queen of the May, with May Queens from festivals of former years.

From the distance, the silver notes of the trumpet announced the hour of one. and moving slowly down into the valley to the north of the green, the procession advanced toward the audience—a kaleidoscopic pattern of color and movement—a panoramic spectacle of the entire village group. Pages mounted on gaily-bedecked steeds flanked the spirited stallion of the Queen's Champion, clearing the way for Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth and her court of noblemen and ladies, richly garbed in silks and velvets. Thus heralded the long line wound up the hill and around the green, marked here and there by some such arresting movement as the prancing silver steeds which drew the Roman chariot, and flashing at intervals a particularly brilliant hue of some distinctive group of characters. As the pageant wagons at the end of the procession rolled onto the green. the trumpet signaled the revelers to make obeisance to the Queen and a lusty shout arose from the throng.

A band of strolling troubadours giving voice to a joyous song grouped themselves in the center of the green, and the host of merrymakers gathered nearby to witness the crowning of the maiden whom they had chosen to rule over the festival. Miss Marjorie Baker, her blonde loveliness accentuated by a white flowing gown, knelt to receive her crown of varicolored blossoms, placed by the hand of the green-clad Robin Hood, Robert Rollf. As Queen Marjorie and her court of attendants moved toward the throne, the Merry Men of the Greenwood placed the garlanded Maypole upright in the green amid the acclaim of the villagers. The trumpet's blare once more signaled the revelers to their places, and gay groups formed to weave the Maypole strands and perform the picturesque folk dances which were so important a part of all Old English tradition.

Among the merry dancers, cavorting and frolicking with abandon, hobby horses dashed to and fro through the elongated legs of the awkward stilt walkers to avoid the bumps of the Mummers who bent low to push them. Honking geese, necks outstretched, were guided through the crowd by Goose Girls and from time to time the sounds of oxen, sheep, and cows added to the general confusion.

The folk dances over, Morrice Men,

"After the Court of Her Excellent Majestie, Queen Elizabeth, rode Mayde Marian and Robyn, both nobly mounted, followed by the Merry Men of the Greenwood."

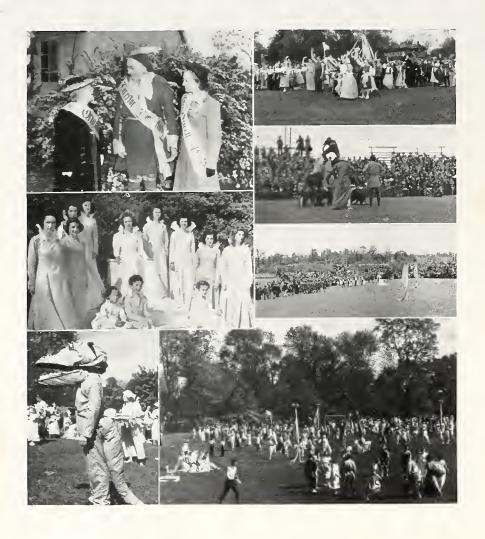

"Shepherdesses, leading little sheepe, milk maydes, chimney sweeps and gypsies, all went reveling on the eve of the first of May. . ."

clothed in purple, green, and black, flashed their white kerchiefs in an effort to drive away the make-believe witches, and a colorful band of gypsies, their tambourines jingling, danced to the accompaniment of an accordian. Tumblers tumbled, chimney sweeps swept, and children mimicked the antics of their elders in their frolic on the green. A fitting climax to the festive scene was the performance on the green of the Old English play "St. George and the Dragon," in which, despite the general slaughter of everyone, the day is saved by a special remedy of the Quack Doctor, who brings to life the hero and all the contestants.

The revels ended, the spectators thronged onto the green to mingle with the merrymakers, scattering to various places on the campus to watch the Thespian groups bring to life Old English characters in four traditional plays. Each play was repeated four times at half-hour intervals so that the spectators and village folk alike would have the opportunity to witness all the plays.

Northwest of Carpenter Hall, just across the drive, a scene from Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was reenacted with the performance of the "Merry and Tragical Masque of Pyramus and Thisbe." Seated on stone benches, the Duke of Athens and his bride, accompanied by a group of friends, were entertained by a comic sketch, the villagers' portrayal of the tragic love episode of Pyramus and Thisbe. Difficulties with properties, forgotten lines, and general confusion, all a part of the play, combined to make this Shakespearean farce hilariously funny to both the stage audience and visiting spectators. The Duke and his bride were ably played by Myron Durkee and June Griswold, and Harold Zimmerman and Stephen Randall, as Pyramus and Thisbe, were more than faithful to Shakespeare's characterization of the lovers.

Full of action and romance, the colorful pageant of the "Merry Men of the Greenwood," enacted north of the observatory, struck a responsive note in the hearts of all who viewed it. Everyone was familiar with the characters from Alfred Lord Tennyson's play, "The Foresters," describing the deeds of Robin Hood and his merry men, of their encounters with Prince John in Sherwood Forest, and of the tender love of Robin and Maid Marian. Robert Rollf and Janet Stickney played admirably these last two roles.

A popular spot was the green northeast of Earlham Hall, where ten jovial sword dancers combined colorful movement with entertaining dialogue in "The Revesby Sword Play." Circling to the accompaniment of tabor and pipe, these agile men executed difficult patterns with their swords, all woven into the story of a Foole and his sons and their involvement in a mutual love affair. "Foolish" to perfection was Wayne Guernsey, playing the part of the father.

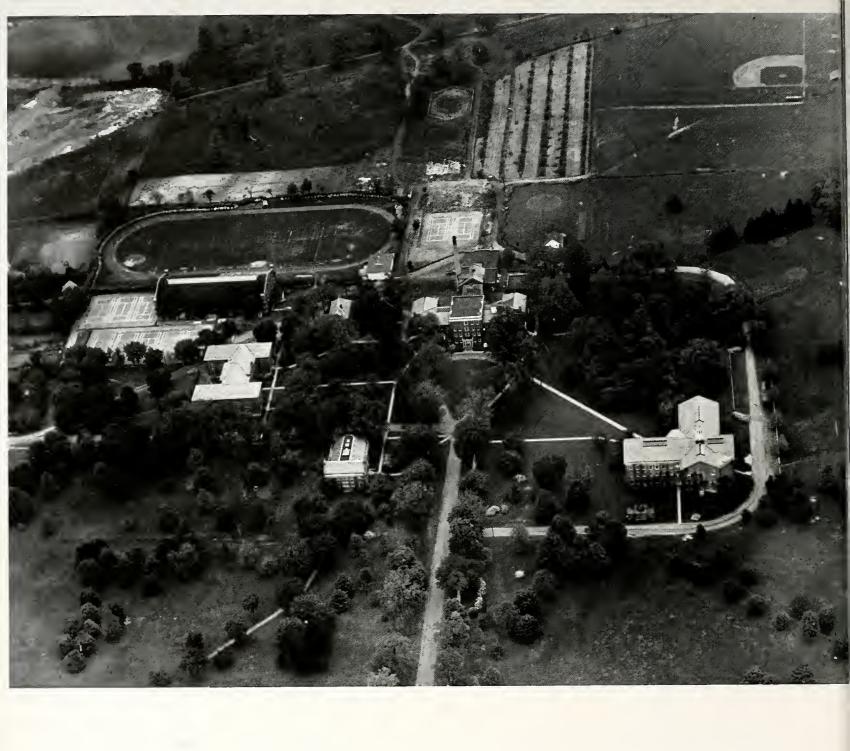

Chase Stage was graced with an assembly of lovely maidens, clad in Grecian robes of pastel tints. Dancing gracefully with a musical background by a string ensemble, the players made a charming picture as they enacted "Chloridia," a masque written by Ben Jonson at the command of Queen Elizabeth. This pageant, presented for the first time this year, beautifully combined terpsichorean art with a story of the crowning of Chloris as the goddess of flowers. Presented by the largest cast of any of the plays, in a setting of natural beauty, "Chloridia" was acclaimed a success by all.

We who participated felt that there was something distinctive about the 1941 Old English May Day. Although there was the same general program and the same spontaneity, certain details of presentation added a new note to the festival—a Punch and Judy show under the direction of Dorothy Myrick, Pageant Wagons of "The Creation" and "The Deluge," and novel decorative features. But in addition to these tangible evidences of uniqueness was the peculiar significance of the perpetuation of an Old English tradition at a time when all such traditions seemed to be threatened by a darkening future.

RICHMOND, INDIANA

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Greetings to the Sargasso:

In the early years of this century, an American statesman defined a patriot as a man "who gives his country what his country needs at the time his country needs it." I know of no better definition. The duty to die for one's country has been a favorite theme of poets and authors from Horace to Lowell. "Dulce et decorum est pro patria mori." "What are all our lives to save thee?" The duty to live for one's country is equally imperative, although less spectacular, and that duty is always present whether in war or peace.

The true patriot is not only the man or woman ready to give life itself for country in whatever way conscience dictates, but the man or woman who thinks straight, who speaks bravely, and who listens and insists that others have the right to speak. "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God," but "God grants liberty only to those who love it and are always ready to guard and defend it." This means to defend it in peace as in war, at home as well as abroad, by straight thinking as well as by courageous action, and above all, by cheerfully according to others the rights claimed for ourselves. Liberty and equality are to a certain extent contradictory. They require fraternity to complete a consistent trilogy, and fraternity means tolerance of the opinions and "respect for the rights of others," which, as a great statesman said, "is peace,"—peace for all mankind.

Earlham has always sought to send out men and women to serve these great ends.

George Van Dyke Dean of the College Prof. of Physics

The men of Earlham like a Dean who can understand them. All the student body admires a man who proves his integrity equally well in the classroom and on the campus. George Van Dyke has, in one short year, added his enthusiasm and sportsmanship to these fine qualities in becoming a popular and respected Dean.

Earlham is fortunate in having the dignified and able service of Miss Comstock as Dean of Women. With tact and sincerity she has at all times lent encouragement and friendship to her helpful advice. It is with deep gratitude that we add our admiration to the deserved esteem bestowed on her by many.

As Staff members, they enjoyed a special prestige, and also a responsibility—that of imparting to these new recruits the feeling of good fellowship and friendliness which makes Earlham so distinctive. For five days freshmen were on the throne—days filled with a round of parties, receptions, tours, games, tests, physical examinations, etc., etc.-

EARLHAM POST

EARLHAM COLLEGE, APRIL 2, 1941 VOL. XI

PROGRESS NOTES YEAR 0 F

Advisory Board Plans Campaign

Baker, Rollf To Reign Over Festival Quadrennial Old English May Fete To Be Held Here May 9

by Robert Clevenger

Late Friday, Marjorie Baker pulled out ahead of her two rivals in the final round of the May Queen election to become the queen of Earlham's sixteenth quadrennial Old English May Day festival to be held May 9. Robert Rollf, a junior, did the unusual by defeating two senior candidates in the election of Robin Hood, feature male role in the May festival.

Miss Baker has more than once made excursions into the realm of royalty. Last fall, Miss Baker mounted the queen's throne to rule over Earlham's Homecoming celebration, and the blond beauty was attendant to the Homecoming queen in her junior year. Miss Baker has been one of Earlham's leaders in the field of activities. She was a member of the Freshman Week Staff and is a member of the Women's Precedent committee. She has been active in debating, dramatics, and other student activities. Miss Baker has more than

The other candidates, Jo Ann Martin, of Tipton, and Beatrice Peter, of Philadelphia. Pa., will be attendants in the Court of Queen Marjorle. Miss Baker is a Richmondite, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Baker, 527 W. Main St.

Robert "Robin Hood" Rollf, red-headed junior and Earlham athlete, is also a Richmondite. Rollf is versatile in his abilities. Not only does he sink baskets for the Earlham varsity cagers and swing a bat on the Maroon nine, but he is active in the Ionian Literary society, the Student Senate, the Philosophy Forum, and dramatics. He is a member of the Varsity club and Double E club, and is recognized as a scholar besides. Bob is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rollf, 237 South 14th St. Other members of the trio of candidates for the role of Robin Hood were Robert Gingery, of Indianapolis, and Edgar Thomas, of Streat-or, Illinois.

This is Earlham's sixteenth quadrennial May Day celebration. Earlham was the first college in the United States to observe May Day; the first celebration being held in 1875. Earlham will be the only college in the United States to have the old English festival and Revels on the Green this year. Bryn Mawr College, the only other college boasting on old English May Day, of like magnitude, has indefinitely postponed its celebration. The Bryn Mawr festival originally was scheduled for 1940 and this is its second postponement. This is Earlham's sixteenth

Renshaw is Elected to Post Staff

Lowell Renshaw, sophomore, from Indianapolis, was elected business manager of the Earlham Post, a canvass of votes in Monday's election revealed. The other candidate for business manager was Joe Knose, of Hagerstown. Dave Garrison, Niota, Tenn., received the Post Advisory Board's appointment as editor to succeed Anne Magruder. Renshaw succeeds Bill Wolf, currently serving as the Post's business manager.

Renshaw holds a prominent place on the Earlham campus. He served for a short while on the business staff of the Post, is a member of the varsity tennis team, and prominent in extra curricular activities.

Week-end "Mixer" Success Why Not Make Them Regular?

The social committee of the Student Senate is certainly to be commended for their sponsoring of the dance Saturday night. There were decorations, refreshments, and tables for bridge; and a good-sized crowd attended. And while ye ed. is throwing roses, Bill Newlin certainly ought to be tossed one for his sound engineering.

The week-ends for the past few weeks have been deadly, to say the least. Without any sport events, there has been nothing at all going on. This dance was a positive step toward clearing up that situation.

Since this dance was such a success. why not have one every Friday or Saturday night? Almost all other campuses have their weekly "mixers," and Earlham's none-too-tight hold on liberalism would be greatly strengthened by this addition

-And So Into The Night

Working far into the night to get The Post ready to "put to bed," these five members of editorial staff show signs of weariness. Editor Dave Garrison (extreme left) mumbles in his beard, Managing Editor Jim Goar appears tired of it all, and Sports Editor Ralph McCracken wonders why he didn't pick the winners in recent high school basket ball tourney. Anne Magruder, who has recently ended a term as editor, and Dorothy Myrick, writer of Criticus, look on.

Letters to the Editor

to the Editor

March 20, 1941

To the Post Staff:

I have just finished devouring this week's Earlham Post and wish to say—thanks a lot.

Maybe I just have a different slant on the picture now but I think not. I always felt that the news was stale because we always knew the tory behind the news before it appeared in the Post. However, lately I have felt, and I think the students must feel also, that they are being given new slants in your clever headlines and feature articles on "unnoticed" campus happenings.

Opal Thornburg

The Earlhamite

One of the two or three oldest alumni magazines in the country, the Earlhamite has been a quarterly publication since 1873. Edited by Opal Thornburg and published jointly by the Alumni Association and the College, it provides to alumni and old students a pleasant contact not only with what is going on currently at their alma mater, but also interesting and up-to-date information concerning the activities of their various classmates. An indication of the esteem in which this publication is held is its popularity among even present students of the college, who anticipate with pleasure each issue of the Earlhamite.

Tau Kappa Alpha

"The art of speech is like the kindling of Heaven's light to show us what a glorious world exists . . . It is the mirror of the soul; as a man speaks, so is he . . . " Tau Kappa Alpha is a national honorary forensic fraternity. Membership is an honor and privilege for which students are eligible in their second year of public speaking activities. Pledges, having executed their "scab" duties, emerge from the solemn ceremony of initiation proudly wearing the gold key, which signifies the highest in forensic attainment. The annual T.K.A. Congress, in which a representative group of Earlhamites participated this year, provides a unique experience in speech fellowship.

International Relations Forum

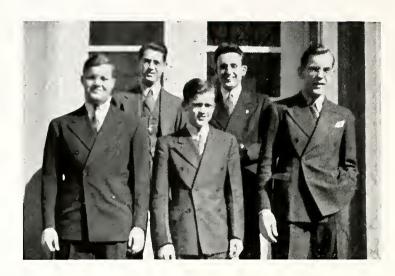

This year, with civilizations tumbling and armies on the march, with nations maneuvering in delicate diplomatic "coup d'etats," and with the entire world mechanism of international relations in a state of upheaval, the ordinary man on the street found plenty to talk about. So also did students, and the Earlham International Relations Forum was the place to do it.

Organized primarily for the discussion of international affairs, the war and the part our country was to play in it gave to the Forum an inexhaustible source of material for discussion. In addition to round table discussions, outside speakers were invited to address the group. Outstanding among these was Professor John J. Haramy, of Indiana Central College, an historian whose insight into foreign affairs and whose dynamic presentation made his address particularly significant.

The genuine student interest in the kaleidoscopic movement of world events was best evidenced by the size of the group which at every meeting of the Forum filled Room 221 to capacity.

Men's Debates

No international conferences resulted from the many debate discussions this year, but it wasn't because the debaters didn't try. Debating the question, "Resolved: that nations of the Western Hemisphere should unite to form a permanent union," the men's team met representatives from far and wide. The season opened on January 11 with a practice tournament at Wittenberg (no decisions handed down) in which teams tried out their pet theories, most of which were later either discarded or revised in preparation for the climatic tournament at Columbus. On February 28 at Capital University the gruelling sessions of verbal conflicts began, and Earlham's two teams met twelve teams from the total of nineteen entered in the tournament.

The season's schedule included debates with Asbury, Rose Poly, Albion, Indiana State Teachers College, Wittenberg, and Wabash, some decision and others non-decision. To break the monotony of just words, the broadcast debate with Fairmont State Teachers' College was conducted in the more informal Oregon style of debating. Lacey's proficiency in the art of economic technology confused many a confident debater, including at times even his colleague. With a total of thirty-one debates, the season closed March 10 with the Wabash engagement, and the question still wasn't settled!

Women's Debates

Although they didn't get the last word (since their season ended sooner), this year the women discussed the same question as the men. The season began soon after Thanksgiving vacation with a Capital University debate as a warm-up. By the time cases could be revised, the Wittenberg exchange debate was at hand and another trip included Capital again and Ohio University. The question this year raised many questions of economic policies, precedents, programs, etc., which in most instances were evaded or investigated later. The new experience of debating with men didn't prove as disastrous as might be expected when the team met the men from Illinois Wesleyan.

Until the tournament December 12, all debates had been non-decision, in good fun and fellowship; however, at Columbus the teams settled down to serious matters. In spite of the new arguments and revised plans (e.g. Wittenberg) which they met, the A team won seven out of twelve decisions while the B team (Freshmen gaining experience) received a high rating. Officially, in the tournament, Earlham tied with Wittenberg for third place, as usual. A fitting climax to the brief and concentrated season was the exchange debate with DePauw from which Earlham emerged victorious in both decisions.

Extempore Contest

Cox, Gnernsey, Dudgeon, Wilson, Lacey.

Five people survived the preliminaries of the first semester extempore contest to demonstrate in chapel their ability to talk on their feet. Wayne Guernsey's five-minute oration earned for him the honor of adding his name to the long list on the Extempore Cup. The spring contest on March 14 determined another talker-onfeet and another name-on-cup, Tom Dudgeon. Since there were now five winners in school, an additional winners' contest was held for the first time in four years to determine the extemporizer of extemporizers, the winner of winners, Lowell Cox.

Wilson, McConaha, Guernsey.

Old Line

The traditional Old Line Oratorical contest on January 13 gave aspiring politicians and orators an opportunity to expound convictions before an audience of conscripted speech classes. From the five entrants in the women's division, Carrol McConaha and Carol Robinson won first and second prizes, respectively. For unknown reasons the larger number of eight contestants constituted the men's division. Here, James Wilson and Lowell Cox carried off the honors.

In the state contest at Franklin on February 7 Earlham was very proud that both representatives placed second. James Wilson's oration was entitled "Give Me Liberty," and Carrol McConaha's was "Asleep in the Deep."

Wayne Guernsey won the annual Peace Oratorical contest held here on April 11. This earned for him the right to represent Earlham in the state tournament held here on May 2.

String Ensemble

Band

Mr. Vioni—his spats, his hair and his good stories have helped bring the band through another year of 3:10 rehearsals, musical revues and athletic events. When our clarinet-playing lawyer maestro is busy on a case of one sort or another, and is unable to be present, his shoes minus the spats, are filled by Mary Louise Mitchell. It is always a question whether there will be any saxophone section, or whether the trombones can make more noise than the trumpets, but there is always sure to be plenty of wind in the bass section. We hope for even a bigger and better band next year, for Vioni's supply of "good cheer" is evidently inexhaustible.

The String Ensemble provides opportunity for those interested in string playing to get not only instruction and experience, but also the enjoyment which comes from working with those who have similar interests. Ensemble Chapel Programs are very popular because they are not only enjoyable, but they belong to that type of chapel in which we may read without feeling that we are conspicuously insulting those on the stage, for the players are very busy keeping up with the music, and Mr. Hicks is even busier trying to keep up with them.

Choir

Scenes from "L'Enfant Prodigue"

Although there was no Gilbert and Sullivan, nor Flotow, and even though Prexy's dream of the beer guzzling Prince is still unrealized, the choir did work this year with some considerable degree of success. Selections from Handel's "Messiah" were sung for chapel at Christmas time, and the Earlham Choir joined with the Richmond Centennial Choir in the presentation of the great oratorio in Civic Hall. Several other musical concerts and broadcasts were given. Outstanding during the year was the pantomine, "L'Enfant Prodigue" by Wormser, which was presented for an Earlham audience in January. This, the most successful pantomime ever written, was directed by Prof Cox, and starred Dororthy Myrick in the leading role. Others in the cast included, Bea Peter, Prof. Cox himself, Eleanor Ann Eudaly, Bob McMullin, Stephen Randall, and Bob Byrd, accompanist. Plans were made to turn this group into a touring company for Spring vacation, and appearances were scheduled in various cities throughout the East.

The repertoire during the second semester included a strange mingling of sacred songs and lively May Day dances.

addition to these regularly scheduled activities, Mask and Mantle this year produced the Scribblers' Club prize-winning play, "High Road," a product of our own Miss Eves.

Ample reward for their thespian efforts was provided for Mask and Mantle members and guests in two regularly scheduled social events; a tea dance held last fall at the Seven Mile Tavern, and a spring dinner dance at the Eaton Country Club.

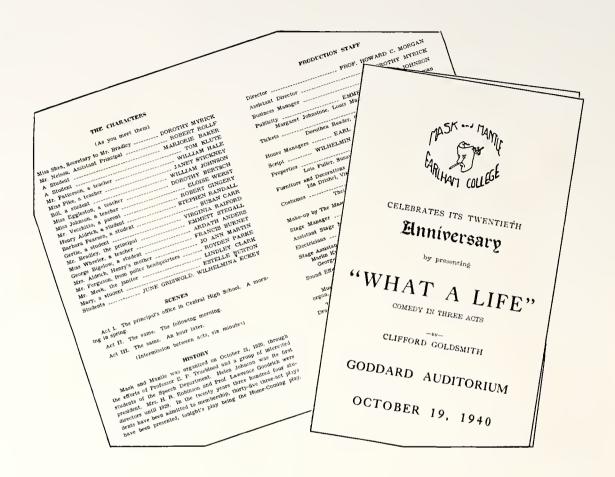

Mask & Mantle

"The play's the thing" with the twenty-six members of Mask and Mantle. Organized in 1920, and active ever since, this society includes among its members the best in campus dramatic talent. Membership is elective, based on a system of points acquired through participation in open meeting plays in which both production and acting points may be earned. Twice each year Mask and Mantle contributes a three-act play. Highlight of the Homecoming program this fall was their production of "What a Life"; and "Family Portrait," produced in the spring, was similarly successful. "Road" programs developed by members also provide entertainment for church organizations, club meetings and school assemblies. In

"What a Life!" That's what we all say once in a while when things go wrong, but when we got a glimpse of two days in the life of Henry Aldrich, we decided that our lives weren't half as bad as they might be. Trouble seemed to stalk Henry. The core of his difficulties was his love of art—particularly the art of drawing cartoons of his high school teachers. So-Henry was called to the principal's office for disturbing the study hall. His rival in love and school fame, George Bigelow, lent his hand to make the sting more effective. It looked for a while as though Henry weren't going to succeed in taking his love, Barbara Pearson, to the prom because of financial difficulties, and also because of threatening expulsion from school. The angel of mercy and the boy's best friend turned out to be Mr. Nelson, who tactfully put two dance tickets where Henry could "find" them, and persuaded Henry's mother to allow him to attend a commercial art school, where he would be able to draw to some good purpose. As the curtain rang down we all felt that life doesn't always turn out as gloomily as it seems.

The variety of other students, Miss Shea, the secretary who promised to make Mr. Nelson's life "worth living," and the rest of the high school staff all added spice and zest to the production.

The "Family Portrait" of any reknowned family is interesting to all of us, but when it is the portrait of the family in the background of the life of the One who is the symbol of our Christian religion, we scrutinize it with particular interest.

"Family Portrait" gave us a composite view of the family of Jesus—His mother, and His aunt who understood and protected His ideals, and His brothers who thought Him insane. We saw the worry and heartache which must have been Mary's as she watched her son grow to fame in the midst of derision from the people of the home town. But His strength is revealed in striking contrast to the weakness of those who surrounded Him.

There was humor, too, as in everyone's life—furnished here by Selima, the wineshop proprietress, Eben, the peddler, and numerous other "characters." The earthiness of life, even in the higher plains, was felt at every moment.

Boards Club

This group, composed of painters, carpenters, electricians, and glass-blowers, if necessary, has the responsibility of staging all college productions. Though most people hold the erroneous idea that this is a thankless job, there is a real thrill when a scene really looks like an old castle or a door latches promptly and easily. And there's always the tangible reward of a steak dinner!

This year a startling change was made constitutionally in Boards Club when amendments were incorporated to allow women in the organization. They aren't expected to swing on the ropes or haul scenery up and down, but rather to have charge of props, decoration on the stage (curtains, chair covers, etc.) and off-stage effects.

Membership is acquired through a period of apprenticeship, after which any person may become a member of this organization who knows the mysteries of the loft and footlights.

Masquers

"In masks outrageous and austere" these members deal whenever their talents are demanded. The Masquers were in charge of all make-up in open meeting and Mask and Mantle plays. The second semester, regular meetings were held to plan for additional work brought on by May Day. The year-old make-up room was used extensively for meetings, actual work, and to house the make-up material, which includes one mirror left by the Mordkin Ballet.

The highest honor to student actors and actresses is membership in National Collegiate Players, honorary dramatics fraternity. Nomination is based on high standards of acting, production, and scholarship. The outstanding event this year was the formal initiation for 8 new members, held in the spring. This was conducted by present chapter members, assisted by alumni. A great deal of time and hard work are represented in the wearing of the emblem of N.C.P., the gold key.

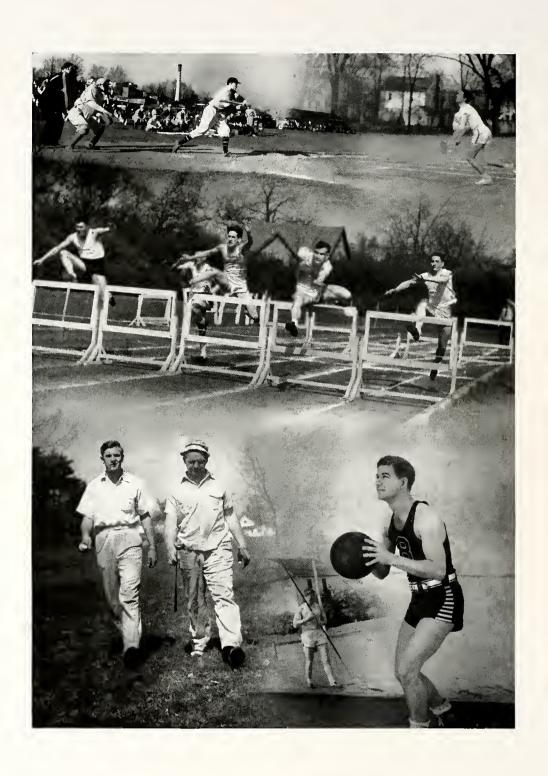

The College Outing

One Saturday early in November saw Earlham students and faculty en route to Mammoth Cave, Kentucky. The 200 mile jaunt was broken by stops at Bardstown, site of the Kentucky Home of Stephen Foster fame, and at the impressive Lincoln Memorial at Hodgeville.

Mammoth Cave Hotel was a welcome sight about five o'clock, and even more so the chicken dinner a la Southern style, which came later. The trip through the cave in the evening was packed with echoes, jokes by the guides, weird shadows, and a long procession of lights winding ahead in the distance. Admonitions on the part of the management for "silence" were unnecessary, for it was a tired lot who stumbled to bed about 11:30.

Sunday was appropriately begun with devotions by Dr. Berry, then back to the cave for a look at "Frozen Niagara." The army at Fort Knox claimed the attention of everyone on Sunday afternoon, as Lieutenant Colonel Kinman escorted the group to the U. S. gold depository, to the Fort chapel, through the mechanized units, and lastly to a wonderful meal in the Mess Hall.

The ride home under a bright moon brought to a close a successful week-end, packed with myriad sights and experiences.

Football

With the return of nine letter winners from last year's successful season, Coach Huntsman looked forward to the 1940 football schedule. He might have been disappointed somewhat in the outcome, but in his own words, "When you lose games you are building character, and when you win games, you are gaining reputation." Earlham did a great deal of character-building this year, but a better reputation for next year is envisioned.

There were five complete teams out for the daily practices, which was the largest number in years. Not all of the members of the grid machine made the grade for Saturday's fracas; nevertheless they did learn the fundamentals. After three weeks of intense practices under the hot sun, the gridiron season began on Reid Field Saturday, October 5, with the Central Normal Warriors of Danville.

Showing a lack of offense that kept the Maroons deep in their own territory, the fourth quarter started with the Quakers trailing by thirteen points. By means of an air attack the locals came to life and the score was soon tied 13-13. Big Jim Phelps not only lumbered along at 15 yards per trip, but he also had a little time to pitch a couple of yard-gaining passes. Neb De-Honey performed a la Don Hutson. However, the game ended before Earlham could achieve a third touchdown, and the 13-13 tie remained.

On a day ideal for swimming our boys battled the Wabash Bachelors at Crawfordsville. Both teams played for the breaks. In the second quarter genial Joe Garoffolo deftly evaded the would-be Wabash blockers and neatly blocked an attempted field goal. At the beginning of the fourth quarter, with Wabash punting from behind their own goal line, Zimmerman slipped through the opposition's forward wall and the result was a blocked punt which Bob Haas recovered on the six yard line. It was first and goal to go. But Earlham did not score. A running play and a couple of short passes brought the count to last down and still six yards to go. As a final effort a try for a field goal at a difficult angle was attempted; but it floated wide. From here Wabash took charge. Slowly but surely they advanced the ball toward Earlham's goal line. With but 35 seconds to play, a Wabash sub place-kicked the ball between the cross bars for three points and the game.

In the Homecoming tilt before a large crowd Earlham engaged the Garnets from Swarthmore. After taking the opening kick-off Swarthmore marched 92 yards to pay dirt. In that drive for a touchdown the plays of the easterners were executed with split-second precision. Earlham's usually effective passing attack was stifled by the fast-charging Garnet line. Of the thirty-one passes attempted by our boys only nine were completed, and there were six interceptions, one of which accounted for Swarthmore's second touchdown. Earlham's only tally came in the last minute of play on a pass from Wright to Ortwein.

In regards to the Rose Tech game, or what have you, the less said the better. Of course, Rose had a good team, but not a team that should have beaten Earlham 47-0! However, this game was a good example of one team being "on" and the other "off." Earlham was definitely "off!" The Quaker defense was like a sieve. Two hundred thirty yards were gained against our defense. Even the total of one hundred yards of penalty levied on Rose Poly couldn't help our boys. Earlham made several substitutions in an attempt to halt the touchdown parade, but to no avail.

Adding insult to injury might be said of the Earlham-Evansville contest. Again this year the game was played down along the Ohio; but in the previous encounter Earlham emerged victorious. The Aces' offense really clicked in the second quarter and they held a twenty point lead at the half. Here is a summary of their touchdowns: A lateral and the ensuing run was good for 51 yards; one of our punts was returned 42 yards and with a few line bucks accounted for the second tally; two passes and the same number of runs netted 55 yards and the third touchdown; the other two Evansville six-pointers resulted from pass interceptions. Oh yes, Earlham threatened once. Late in the final quarter several passes and two major penalties on the Aces put the ball on the one vard line-but the gun intercepted our chances of scoring.

Although displaying greater teamwork and better football in general, the Quakers lost their fifth consecutive game to the mighty Tigers from DePauw 20-0. The Tigers clawed their way to the vicinity of the goal line several times in the first half, but each time they were repelled. For over two periods the locals, led by Garoffolo. kept the count a scoreless tie. Midway in the third quarter the enemy's running attack started functioning, and so did the scoreboard. A couple of speed merchants skirted the ends and there went the ball game. Nevertheless Earlham kept up a good fight, and it was only superior man power that enabled DePauw to defeat our gallant band.

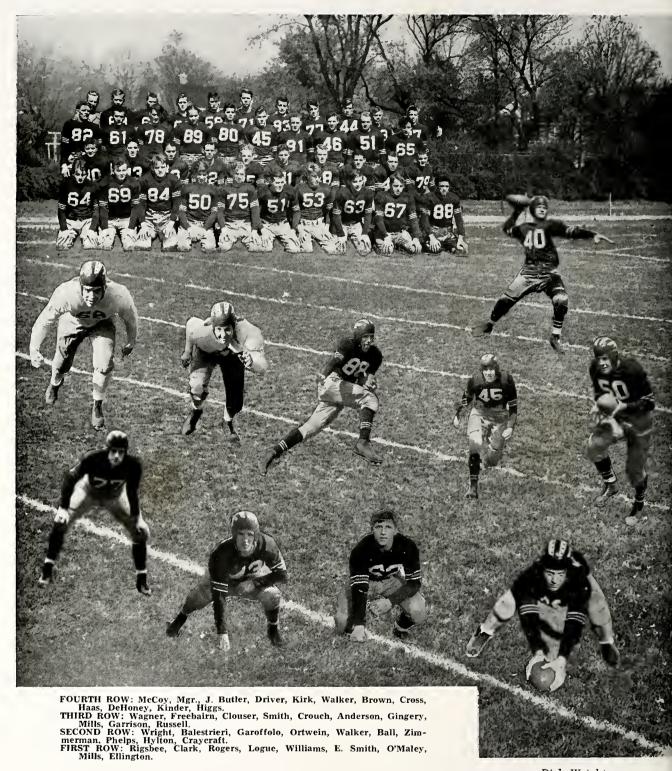

As a finale to the 1940 grid season we witnessed two victory- starved elevens. Franklin and Earlham, matching their strength on a cold November Saturday. Maybe the sub-freezing weather had something to do with our victory, because the boys had to move and move fast to keep warm. The Quakers scored in the opening minutes of the game. Co-captain Balestrieri recovered a short kick-off which a Grizzly fumbled. A half-dozen line plays brought the ball to the shadows of the crossbars whence Jackie Craycraft skirted his own left end for the initial six-pointer. The point after touchdown was successful. In the third quarter the Franklin forward wall stormed through, blocked a punt, and ran it for a touchdown. Their attempted place-kick for the conversion,

Every year there is a sameness and a newness to Homecoming; the same schedule of clean-up, Tiv rush, decoration, etc., and yet new alumni, new ideas, a new play, and atmosphere. This year one new element was introduced clean-up afternoon with the sophomore angels on their "way to Heaven" who were politely requested to partake of their ambrosia elsewhere than in the dining room. The old routine entered with raking, and cider (sweet) and doughnuts, sponsored by Gesangverein. Homecoming schedule continued Friday evening with a huge bonfire and pep session, followed by the traditional Tivoli rush.

Decorations this year brought new ideas and atmosphere, though the traditional maroon and white will never grow old. The prize for the best decoration went to the Day Dodgers for their cemetery in front of the Libe. Choice epitaphs on the graves of the Swarthmore team (line-up okayed by team members) and the old pine box made a clever and original decoration. Class banners alternated with Quaker cartoons in dressing up the Drive.

Saturday afternoon before a large crowd of students, alumni, and friends, Dean Van Dyke crowned the lovely Homecoming Queen, Marjorie Baker, elected by popular vote of the students. One of the highlights of Homecoming was the Swarthmore-Earlham football game, won by the former, 13-6. Earlham's last minute touchdown caused no little excitement. According to the same routine again there was open house in both dorms, a Camera Club exhibit in the Faculty Parlor, and a Mask & Mantle play; but "What a Life" was a new and different high school comedy, superbly presented by the college dramatists.

It may have been the traditional Homecoming routine and the same scenes on campus, but the spirit of coming back to Earlham will always be new!

however, was blocked, and Earlham was out in front by a point. That Franklin touchdown aggravated our boys, and when they started moving again the outcome was never in doubt. Zimmerman shortly intercepted a pass and set the scene for the final touchdown pass from Wright to Wagner. Earlham showed the best offense of the season as the boys gained 212 yards from rushing and 89 yards on only five completed passes.

Of the twenty letterman in the 1940 squad, eight were seniors. Five of these had played regularly all four years. Cocaptain Joe Balestrieri as a tackle was outstanding for his hard-charging defense. The other captain, Phil Ortwein, was a hard-running back. Dick Wright pitched passes without flinching from the onrushing opposition. Bob Ball ably filled his guard position. And Harold Zimmerman was always right-in-there at center. In addition Jack Craycraft, a speedy back, Winford Walker, reserve lineman, and Joe Hylton, a husky end, played their last football for Earlham this season.

Zimmie, having played more minutes than any other member of the squad, and known for his hard tackling, was the recipient of the coveted "E" blanket, given annually to the outstanding Senior player.

Cross Country

With the experience gained from last year's successful season, the Earlham cross country team continued its outstanding record. In four of its conference meets the heels of the local runners threw dirt in the faces of the opposition. In the first meet last fall with DePauw, Coach Dave Hawk's charges crossed the finish line tied for first place. The varsity five that accomplished this were Captain John Bye, Harry Miars, Eddie Jordan, Roy Hamilton, and Bill Rogers.

While the football team was resting at half time over at Wabash, the same five captured five out of the first six places. The hill-and-dalers continued their winning streak at the expense of Taylor University when they scored another grand slam.

However, in the best meet of the year Earlham lost by the score of 26-29, high score losing. The victor was Indiana Central whose only defeat of the season was at the hands of Butler. Undaunted by this defeat on the following Saturday the locals returned from Muncie winner over Ball State, again by a large score.

In the best showing of any Earlham cross country team in the Little State meet, the 1940-41 edition finished second behind the Butler aggregation. In doing this the earlier season defeat by Indiana Central was avenged. The placing of Earlham men in this meet was as follows: Bye, fifth; Rogers, Hamilton, Jordon and Miars, seventh to tenth inclusive. Some of the members of the squad were entered in the National Meet at East Lansing, Michigan.

Again all of the varsity members should be back for another successful season as these men are all sophomores and juniors.

Women's Hockey

Earlham's Team

The old adage "variety is the spice of life" might well be applied to our college activities, for variety is the very essence of women's fall sports at Earlham. Although the greater part of student attention centers around the major sport of hockey, there is also an active interest in swimming, riding, archery, tennis, badminton, deck tennis, shuffleboard, and ping pong.

This year hockey began immediately after the opening of college, with an intense practise of three weeks before the single, outstanding exhibition game of the season. With a loss of only two varsity players from last year, and an addition of several new members to the squad, the team was well prepared to play one of the most difficult games ever scheduled at Earlham.

The Start

On the morning of October 12, about two hundred and fifty high school girls gathered on Comstock Field for field and stick work demonstration and playing, with combinations of various teams.

In the afternoon of the same day, before a crowd of nearly five hundred spectators, the Earlham varsity met the United States Touring Team, of whom some are All-American players, in one of the best hockey games ever played on Comstock Field. With the advantage of a 2-1 score at the half, the U. S. Touring Team was able to score two more points in the second half. With only fifteen seconds left to play, Bea Peter hit a hard ball across the circle from right wing, and Eleanor Pennell, Earlham's center forward, flicked it in for a final goal.

Miss Comstock, "Bud" Weber, and Mrs. Robinson all agreed that this game was one of the finest examples of good hockey ever played at Earlham.

During the two weeks following the exhibition game, the members of the varsity squad coached and refereed various teams composed of beginners, intermediate players, and some squad members.

The 1940 season was climaxed by the class tournament. Because there were more varsity players on the sophomore and senior teams, these two classes were scheduled for the closing game. Undefeated and untied, the teams met on the afternoon of November 19 and, as "sister classes," struggled in a brilliant exhibition of stickwork and teamwork, to a final score of 0-0.

On November 29 the annual hockey banquet was held in the Earlham Hall dining room. As mistress of ceremonies, "Tommy" Roberts, manager for the 1940 season, expressed her gratitude to all those who helped to contribute toward making this what she considered "the best hockey season during her four years at Earlham."

At this time, "Tommy" announced the Honorary Varsity, of whom the members are: Bea Peter, Betty Taylor, Eleanor Pennell, "Tommy" Roberts, Eleanor Evans, Sara Kratz, Dottie Reeder, Dot Sharpless, "Twist" Reagan, "Pinkie" Meader, Edith Farley, Sarah Hornbrook, Marian Bye, and Elinor Metzger.

Throughout the entire season, the interest in hockey was at its highest peak, and no better sportsmanship or spirit has ever been witnessed at Earlham.

Basketball

If Coach Huntsman had had his way about the 1940-41 basketball season, he would have had all the games played in Trueblood Fieldhouse, for all seven times the hardwood squad left the local premises they returned defeated; while for the local rooters the victory bell tolled seven out of ten times.

Our record this year was blighted by not too much height, too many injuries, too few good reserves, and financial difficulties for some of the players. Nevertheless, this season's squad should be complimented for their fine teamwork, especially in the second Ball State game. From a squad of unknown possibilities Coach Huntsman produced a good, working quintet that should win more than their share of the games in the next year or two.

With Captain Dick Wright leading the way, the Quakers turned back Rose Tech in their first game by the narrow margin of one point, 40-39. Wright connected for eight field goals out of twenty-four shots.

Asst. Coach Peters Coach J. O. Huntsman

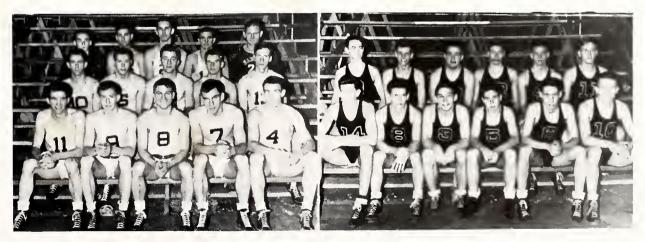

The final score might have been different if three of Rosie's regulars hadn't remained home for a military ball.

Taylor University upset the dope cart by defeating Earlham "up there in Upland," 41-40. This marked the first time Taylor had ever beaten an Earlham quintet. A few nights later Cedarville came over and lost to our boys, 48 to 36.

In the week before Christmas vacation the team journeyed to Ball State and to Wilmington, losing both games. In the Ball State game Earlham led at the half, but ten quick points were soon marked against us and the game was out of our hands. The Wilmington win was due to their superior height.

On December 22, the basketball team's Christmas present to Earlham was a victory over Marietta. This game concluded a disastrous trip through Indiana for the Buckeyes. Three quick baskets by Phil Ortwein in a late stage of the game assured the win.

Earlham's 1940-1941 Squad

The Cavemen from Wabash spoiled the new year by winning in Trueblood Fieldhouse, 33-29. Although Dick Wright swished the draperies for fifteen points the game was lost somehow in the closing minutes.

Not disheartened by the Wabash loss, the E. C. snipers defeated Wilmington, Anderson, and N.C.A.G.U. in quick succession on the local hardwood. Although Wilmington had won the previous encounter, they played an improved Earlham outfit, led by our sophomores. In the Anderson game the result was never in doubt, although the margin of victory was only two points. In the third of this series, additional improvement was noticeable.

A good offense, using a fast break to advantage, was the most evident advance.

After mid-terms Franklin took Earlham to camp with seven points to spare in a game marked by undesirable playing conditions. The following Monday night the much-discussed Evansville Aces came to town. Points were plentiful for both teams, but too plentiful for the visitors' score! Ortwein and DeHoney, with twenty-three points between them, and Anderson with twenty-two points, couldn't cope with Evansville's Doerner, second leading scorer in the state, and Montgomery, who scored fifty-two of the team's total sixty-five points.

In that same week DePauw dropped over to collect their usual victory. Earlham's injuries contributed to our lack of power.

On February 16, Coach Huntsman (and all the rest of us) had the extreme pleasure of seeing Ball State defeated by an Earlham quintet. Not since 'way back in '26 when J. O. was playing himself has that trick been accomplished. As evidence of how close the game was, the score was tied nine different times. The locals showed speed, alertness, and determination. With four minutes to go the count was knotted at 42 all. Anderson's foul shot and Craycraft's basket made the score 45-42. With Earlham trying to stall, a Ball State man intercepted a pass and scored. In an effort to gain possession of the ball, Ball State men committed several fouls. Earlham, refusing the foul shots, elected to take the ball out of bounds every time. With a minute to go, one of the visitors was fouled. The free throw was missed and the crowd was in hysteria as several attempted tip-ins went wide. Still protecting its one point lead, the Earlham quintet again stalled, but lost the ball out of bounds with two seconds to go. A hurried shot by a Ball State man jarred out of the basket's rim—and the game was over. Earlham 45, Ball State 44!

To conclude the season Earlham lost the remaining three games on the road. At Wabash our fellows hadn't quite recovered from the Ball State game. Then at DePauw and at Rose Tech we were simply outclassed.

Although the season's percentage could have been better perhaps, we can't help looking toward the future. Next year's squad will miss Capt. Dick Wright with his accurate "hinterland" shots and his good defense work, Phil Ortwein, whose good work was handicapped by injuries and illness, and Jack Craycraft, who was always ready to get in there and fight. However, the consistently outstanding performances of the underclassmen on the varsity, especially the sophomores, lead us to expect a better-than-average team next year. Rex Anderson led the Earlham scorers this season with 154 points, an average of nine per game, while Neb DeHoney averaged seven points per game. Thus the possibilities for next year plus the unique distinction of a victory over Ball State add highlights to an otherwise less notable 1940-1941 basketball season.

Women's Basketball

The annual basketball banquet was held on Friday, February 28th, with Gertie Lippincott, basketball manager, acting as mistress of ceremonies. After brief speeches by the class captains (Pinkie Meader, senior; Miriam Hoover, junior; Sarah Horn-brook, sophomore; and Ruth Kinkle, freshman) the Honorary Varsity was announced, including the following names: Pinkie Meader, Ruth Binns, Sarah Hornbrook, Eleanor Evans, Elinor Pennell, Sara Kratz, Ruth Cromer, and Jean Ann Hamm. Miriam Hoover, '42, was elected manager for next year.

Swimming

A year-around sport which maintains an ever increasing popularity among Earlham coeds is swimming. A class meets every Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. for instruction and an opportunity to develop certain skills. Dottie Reeder, manager, and Marilyn Miller assist Bud Weber in instructing beginners. Led by the class captains (Betty Taylor, senior; Thea Briggs, junior; Sara Kratz, sophomore; and Bobby Meek, freshmen) swimming reaches its climax in the early spring with a class meet, captured this year by the juniors.

Each year Earlham, with fifty other colleges throughout the United States, enters the Telegraphic Meet. Representing E. C. this year were Dottie Reeder, Marilyn Miller, June Griswold, Sara Kratz, Elinor Pennell, and Bobby Meek. The contest consists entirely of speed swimming, and the times are clocked, recorded, and telegraphed along with those of all the other colleges in order to determine the first, second, third, and fourth places. The Earlham meets this year were held on February 28th and March 13th and included individual races. relays, and medleys.

Intramurals

Under the masterful guidance of Floyd "Butch" Peters, assistant gum chewer to Coach Huntsman, the men's intramural program was 'brought to new heights. Participants in this program included not only the fellows who didn't make varsity, but also those varsity who desired to keep their figures trim during the off seasons.

In the fall, touch-football and softball were played in the hours set aside for the physical education program. At the same time a tennis tournament was conducted which was won by the Cuban senor, Carlos Ezpeleta. Gus Yount was the champ in the divot-digging tournament.

During the winter months basketball was the main bill of fare. Over fifty men participated in the eight team league (later six teams). The schedule was arranged so that games would be played on those Wednesday nights when they wouldn't conflict with other activities on the campus. A total of nine games was played by each team. Vigran, a lanky freshman, topped the list in individual scoring.

Ping pong, although played throughout the year, claimed twenty-two entries in its elimination tournament. Ralph Richter again copped top honors. Badminton was also enjoyed by its following. The tourney winner in this up-and-coming sport was Berry Coe.

Again in the spring there was a tennis tournament for the pupose of determining the fifth man on the varsity team. Phil Ortwein earned the distinction.

The intramural program affords an opportunity for students to get their required physical education credit by actual competition with fellow students. It also provides those who are unable to participate in intercollegiate athletics a chance to enjoy these sports. In many cases experience and development in intramural athletics has led to valuable additions to varsity squads.

Track

Coach Huntsman

THIRD ROW: Breitenbach, Jim Butler, Jack Butler, Bill Butler, Mgr., Wilson, John Rogers, Bill Gingery, Hart, Foster.

SECOND ROW: Smith, Kinnard, Ellington, Anderson, DeHoney, Bill Rogers, Hamilton.
FIRST ROW: McCracken, Gohring, Hylton, Ball, Bye, Schwyhart.

Coach J. Owen Huntsmen's 1941 track squad includes an impressive array of good men, although comparatively weak in the dash section. To combat the lack of distance in the broad jump, Coach offered a steak dinner to the first man who could cross the twenty foot mark. At the time of printing Captain Joe Hylton was the closest contender with nineteen feet ten and one-half inches.

The distance men include a list of eight runners, headed by Roy Hamilton who runs the two mile and one mile events. Bill Rogers, displaying good form throughout, runs the ¼ mile, ½ mile and mile. John Bye is a consistently good ¼ and ½ miler. Earl Smith, a freshman who never ran before, is doing a good job at the ½ mile and mile run. Peter Flinterman is a hard-working two miler, and John Rogers, Bill Foster, and Earl Schwyhart are always good for a mile or two.

In the shot put Captain Hylton heads the list, sharing honors with Lou Gohring. Robert Ball collects his share of points, and Jim Butler, a husky freshman, shows good possibilities for future years.

The discus men include Hylton, Neb DeHoney, Bob Gingery, and Bob Ball.

For javelin throwers Earlham boasts of Phil Ortwein, Hylton, Gohring, and "Breity" Breitenbach. Although Ortwein divides his time between the tennis varsity and track, his javelin hurls are a significant asset to the track records, especially when he hangs up an occasional 167-foot throw.

Earlham's number one pole vaulter is Lou Gohring. Neb DeHoney is a vaulter, but was detained the first of the season by a weak ankle. Bucky Kinnard, Charles Wilson, and Bill Gingery complete the list, and under Coach Huntsman's tutelage should acquire valuable experience and development.

The high jumpers are led by high-point man Rex Anderson, followed by Myron Durkee, Jack Hart, and Bill Rogers.

The broad jump event attracts Hylton, Anderson, Breitenbach, and Duke Ellington

In the high and low hurdles Earlham is fortunate to have Anderson, who turns in firsts as a regular occurrence. Breitenbach and Jack Hart run both the high and low, and Bucky Kinnard is developing into a low hurdler.

To complete the roster of track men, Earlham has five relayers who constantly fight it out for the four positions, John Bye, Bill Rogers, Ralph McCracken, Charles Wilson, and Duke Ellington, and the dash men include Anderson, Ellington, Bill Gingery, Ralph McCracken, and Jack Butler.

Coach Huntsman's track squad opened their 1941 season with a 78-52 victory over the Indiana Central Greyhounds at Indianapolis on Saturday April 12. Earlham, with Rex Anderson taking four first places and a third for 21 points, won seven of the fifteen events and scored slams in the 440-yard dash and the javelin throw.

Rex "Hunk" Anderson won both hurdle races and the high jump, and after taking a third in the hundred yard dash, finished off the afternoon by entering the broad jump for the first time and winning it.

Eighteen of the twenty-two athletes who made the trip broke into the scoring column.

Mile Relay—Won by Earlham (Bye, McCracken, Wilson, B. Rogers). Time, 3:47.

Indiana State's Sycamores rolled up 47 points in the track events of Saturday afternoon, April 19, to pile up a big lead and hand Earlham its first loss of the season in a track meet by a score of 72½ to 58½. Earlham's chief weakness was in the dash events, in which the Sycamores scored 18 points.

Rex Anderson accounted for 16 Quaker points with first in the two hurdle races and the high jump and a third in the broad jump, and took individual scoring honors away from Wally Darius, State sprinter, by a one point margin. Rex ran the high hurdles in : 15.9 against a stiff breeze, and came back to clear the low hurdles just as easily in : 27.8.

Other firsts won by Earlham were the javelin throw by Ortwein, the two mile run by Hamilton, and the discus throw by Hylton.

Summary:

High Jump—Anderson (E), first; Tyler (IS), second; Durkee (E) and McDonald (IS), tied for third. Height, 5 ft., 8 in.

Shot Put—Landers (IS), first; Gohring (E), second; Ball (E), third. Distance, 40 ft., 8 in.

Mile Relay—Won by Indiana State. Time, 3: 36.1.

Women's Spring Sports

With the advent of Spring, the basketball court, swimming pool, and game rooms are abandoned for the golf course, tennis courts, and bridle paths.

Spring sports for women are so numerous as to make time an initial problem. Of all these, hiking and baseball are the only two which do not sponsor individual competition. After several weeks of practice, a class tournament is held in baseball, and an honorary varsity is chosen from the three upper classes. Although greatly dependent upon the weather, hiking is a popular sport, and on almost any bright Sunday afternoon, one may see a mixed crowd of hiking enthusiasts departing from Earlham Hall for destinies unknown.

Immediately following the baseball season is track, highlighted by a track meet. The individual girl winning the highest number of points becomes Track Queen and reigns over the outdoor picnic supper held after the meet.

From Spring vacation on (weather permitting), girls participate in golf, riding, tennis, and archery. This year, for the first time, under the direction of manager Janie Martin, women's golf was played on club courses.

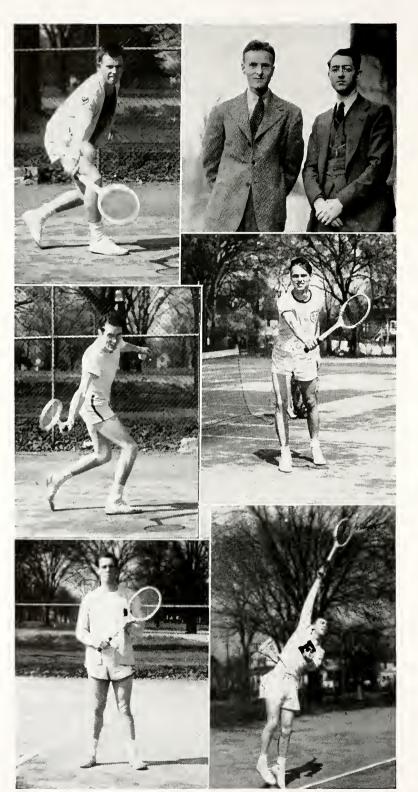

With Dot Sharpless instructing, riding is equally popular with both boys and girls, although eligibility for the annual riding meet is limited to the female element.

Tennis is perhaps the most democratic of all Earlham sports, for even professors condescend to compete with students, not only in the sport, but also in the abbreviated attire. A singles and a doubles tournament are entered by the women, points being awarded to the winners.

Although in recent years we have had no outstanding stars in archery, the sport retains its popularity, and each year Earlham enters the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Meet, held in May.

The entire year of women's sports is lavishly climaxed in early June by a formal banquet, to which are invited all women students, faculty women, wives, and guests. At this banquet athletic awards are made, a cup is presented to the class having acquired the largest number of health points, tribute is paid to the senior girl having the best posture, and Miss Comstock bestows upon a senior girl the greatest honor she may achieve—that of being named E. C. girl.

Tennis

The 1941 tennis team opened its season successfully against Ball State, drubbing them 7-0. This year's schedule renewed rivalries with De-Pauw, St. Joseph, and Wilmington, as well as bringing new contests with Wittenburg, Wabash, and Purdue. With four veterans returning from last year's squad the 1941 prospects for a triumphant season were excellent.

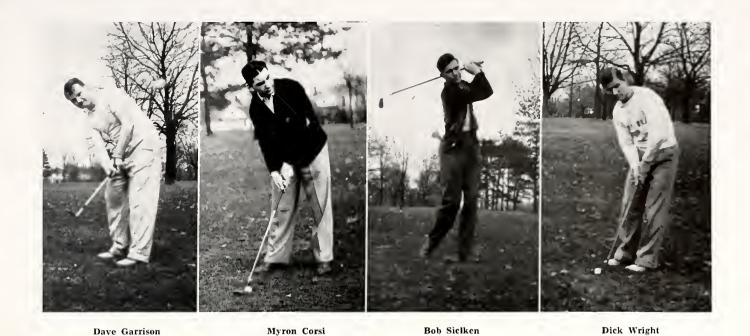

Edward Galen Wood captained the team this year and won his fourth varsity letter. Galen continued in the "onchangeable" style which has served him and Earlham so nobly.

George Barnard also finished his fourth year as a member of the team this spring. Always near the top, he has learned to play the game with a sportsmanship and valor which has been a credit to him and to Earlham's tennis record.

Bill Johnson, also a senior, played his last year of tennis with the determination that first earned for him a position on the team. DePauw may still be able to take Earlham in years to come, but if there are still men like Bill in there fighting, they and our other "university" rivals will know that they have had a match.

Lowell Renshaw started the season in the No. 1 spot, and with his strong forcing game which he displayed in the openers, should prove his right to that position. Lowell swept the "old boys" off their feet in the early encounters to succeed Don Maris, the No. 1 star of last year and acting coach this season.

Phil Ortwein started the season impressively as the No. 5 man. This was the first year with the tennis team for Phil, who has been a valuable track man every spring, and still finds time to participate.

Golf

The Earlham golf team, Indiana conference champions in 1939 and runners-up in 1940, won new laurels this year with four veterans exhibiting improved play.

Individual scoring honors in conference matches were well divided among team members, and the play of the two doubles teams left little to be desired.

Dick Wright, Richmond, individual scoring champion of the Little State meet in '39 and '40, played his last match with the Quakers this year, and will bid farewell to the campus "guarded well by elms and maples" in June. Master of any situation on the golf course, Dick played every club in the bag with equal finesse, and his was a name feared throughout the conference. An allround athlete, Dick was outstanding in football and basketball.

Myron "Babe" Corsi, junior from Richmond, played best "when the chips were down." One-time winner of the city amateur championship and owner of enough loving cups and trophies to grace a clubhouse, Corsi played his shots long and straight to roll up points for the Earlham team. He'll be back in '42 to lead the Earlham mashie men if Uncle Sam doesn't call him to the colors for military training this summer.

Dave Garrison, second semester senior from Niota, Tenn., was no stranger to tournament golf when he came to Earlham to play with the Maroon and White. He, like Wright, has earned a membership in the Hole-in-One Club. Always seeking new worlds to conquer, Garrison strives constantly to improve his game, still mutters over a two-year lay-off in junior college which slowed him down. He could be depended upon to negotiate most Indiana courses in 80 strokes or better. Contributing weekly to the team's "Points Won" record, he has played his last year with the Quakers.

Bob Sielken, strapping sophomore from Indianapolis, packed a world of power and left opponents goggle-eyed with his booming tee shots. Cutting several strokes from his scoring average of the year before, Bob consistently turned in victories in the No. 4 spot. Son of an Indiana State champion, Sielken is never content with his game; you'll hear more from him in years to come.

The 1941 schedule included dual matches with Franklin, DePauw, Wabash, and Butler, and a single tiff with Ball State, in addition to the State Tournament at Purdue. At the time the Sargasso went to press, Messrs. Wright, Corsi, Garrison, and Sielken were planning to enter the National Intercollegiate tournament at Columbus, O.

Earlham's 1940 Conference champions started the 1941 season with only four lettermen returning. Coach George Van Dyke attempted to make a team from a crop of neophytes which would be capable of retaining the conference crown. The starting lineup included five freshmen, while the only senior on the varsity was the captain, Harold Zimmerman.

On Saturday afternoon, April 12, the local aggregation played host to the Ball State Cardinals for the opening game of the season. Both nines plainly showed that it was early in the season, since sixteen errors were committed, ten of them by our boys. Although the count was 11-6 against Earlham, we had a dozen base knocks to our credit.

The next week Earlham staged an eleventh-inning rally to nose out Franklin by one run for the first victory of the year. Bob Rollf not only pitched the entire game, but also brought in the winning tally with a perfectly executed bunt. The Grizzlies obtained only four hits, but they made them count. The Quaker attack was led by Duckworth, who collected a pair of singles.

On the following Saturday. April 19. Earlham came from behind in the ninth inning and scored three runs to turn back Taylor University 5-4. Of the ten hits obtained by Van Dyke's men, five were bunched in the game-winning rally. Frank Weirich and Fred Young split the pitching assignment, while batting honors went to Bob Gordon with two nice blows.

Playing their fourth consecutive game on Van Dyke field, Earlham met the powerful University of Wisconsin team before one of the largest crowds to see a baseball game here. The Wisconsin aggregation was making a spring vacation road trip, playing eight games in nine days. The touring squad spent the night on the Earlham campus.

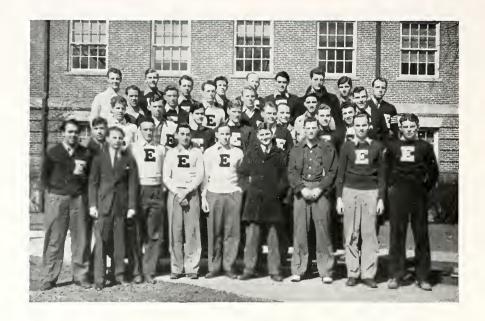

Although Earlham dropped to Wisconsin 5-4, our boys showed their visitors some good baseball. A few mental errors helped the Badgers' cause. Weirich and Young again shared the mound duty and performed in a most creditable fashion. Gordon and O'Maley collected four of Earlham's seven hits. A belated rally in the ninth almost succeeded in catching the Badgers' lead, but fell short by one run.

Since the Sargasso went to press before the close of the season, it was impossible to obtain a complete record of the 1941 season. However, Earlham looked forward to a successful season with Bob Rollf alternating between pitching and covering the initial sack, Guy Jones, converted this year into an outfielder, Bob Gordon at the "hot corner," and Zimmerman in the outfield, as the four lettermen, plus the new additions, Frank Weirich, pitcher, Delbert Duckworth, shortstop, Jack O'Maley, second base, Fred Young, pitcher and outfielder, Jim Haverkos, outfielder, and Don Endicott and Bill Higgs, catchers. Since Coach Van Dyke will lose only one regular this year, Zimmerman, the outlook for the future is very bright.

The Varsity Club, one of the outstanding organizations on the Earlham campus, is made up of those athletes who have won their letters in one or more intercollegiate sports. Initiation into the club is one of the most trying of any group, running to such things as making the neophytes stay up half the night to hunt their letters, or banning them from Camel's corner or the "cem" for a day. However, everyone has survived and the club carries on famously.

Most of the club's filthy lucre is made from its concession stands at basketball and football games, where almost everything but a steak lunch can be purchased. This lucre is used for improvements to Earlham's athletic plant, such as score-boards, etc., and for a new award system introduced last year, under which a key is awarded those members who have served for two years or more and have attended most of the meetings.

Each year the club sponsors two formal dances, the football Blanket Hop and basketball Blanket Hop. Here the E blankets are awarded to the outstanding player in each sport. The football blanket went to Harold Zimmerman of Decatur this year, while the basketball award was presented to Captain Dick Wright of Richmond.

Double &

A brother organization of the varsity club is the Double E Club. Membership is earned by winning a letter in two or more intercollegiate sports. It is a purely honorary organization, having no activities other than to give recognition to the more versatile athletes. Earlham letters are awarded in football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, cross-country, and golf.

In the fall the club holds its annual Homecoming banquet at which all members, past and present, gather to recount outstanding games and renew friendships. At the spring banquet the participants in the spring sports program are honored. The final event of the year is usually an informal get-together or stag in the spring which has often proved to be one of the highlights of the year's activities.

The Women's Athletic Association is responsible for all activities related to women's athletics. Meeting the first Tuesday evening of every month, the board plans tournaments, play-days, and all special events.

It is the obligation of the board to attend to all preparations for accommodating the visiting hockey teams and to plan for their entertainment.

Among its regular social duties, the W.A.A. sponsors a formal dance and provides for banquets at the close of the season of each major sport.

The board consists of the officers, managers of sports, Miss Comstock and Bud Weber. The managers are responsible for all events pertaining to their particular sports, posting notices, and arranging for tournaments.

The Lodge, facing Comstock Field, is the property of W.A.A., having been purchased with the hard-earned money of the board. It is here, on cold winter evenings before a blazing fire, that many campus activities take place and where the visiting hockey teams are entertained at tea after the exhibition matches.

Awards are given for women's sports in accordance with the number of points acquired. A numeral is awarded to all those having received 500 points. A girl receives an E and becomes a member of the E Club for earning 1000 points, playing on class teams, and being active in three major sports. For 2000 points, participation in at least three sports, and membership of an honorary varsity, a girl receives the EE award and is a member of the EE Club.

All awards are made at the final big banquet given by W.A.A. early in June.

Membership in the E.C. Club is limited to those women students who have earned at least 3000 points, participated in four or more sports, and been named on two honorary varsity teams. This is the highest award for women's athletics.

This year the club is composed entirely of seniors, one of whom, Betty Taylor, attained membership as a junior. Twist Reagan became a member immediately following the hockey season this year, and Jane Meader and Anne Magruder were accepted as members in June.

Members of the E.C. Club represent (theoretically) fine sportsmanship, courtesy, and the epitome of good health, denying themselves the luxury of yielding to the temptation of vices. They are supposedly the exemplification of modern American youth at its wholesomest!

This organization includes all those dependable, delightful delvers after knowledge who maintain two homes; one at Earlham (for learning) and another in town (for sleeping). Constituting nearly half of the enrollment, they contribute to the college welfare in athletic, academic, and social fields. They are all ambitious souls who drive, ride the nickle-grabber, hitch, or hike to Earlham every day for an education or a club meeting.

The boys' Den in Bundy serves as a general brousing room for some study, bull sessions, and pleasant hours of leisure. In the Earlham Hall Den the freshmen girls and the radio provide the atmosphere and the upperclass girls the gossip. This year the Day Dodgers sponsored a successful spring dance for all college students.

In many ways the Day Dodgers help dorm students to escape from college routine and in turn are often asked to experience dormitory life. This mutual hospitality and good neighborliness help to strengthen the spirit of friendliness on campus.

Student Senate

Student Senate serves the entire college community just as Bundy Council and A. W. S. do the residence halls. The group is composed of elected representatives of both dormitory and day students, and acts as a coordinating agency to which are brought complaints and suggestions gathered from dormitory bull sessions and faculty meetings. Problems are generally aired, subjected to open, prolonged, and sometimes heated discussion, and then often pigeon-holed for future consideration. Out of these conferences, however, come a surprising number of ideas and accomplishments.

This year Senate planned and directed the Homecoming activities, sponsored skates, dances after basketball games, and occasional dances in the Women's Gym, in addition to the usual financing of the Freshman Handbook.

Significant situations and policy-forming decisions are considered jointly by Senate members and faculty representatives. Working together, both students and faculty thus fulfill the democratic purposes of student government in the cooperative program for the betterment of the entire college body.

Bundy Hall Council

OFFICERS

President	Edward Wood
Vice-Pres	Bill Layden
Secretary	Bill Heywood
Treasurer	Bill Johnson

Director of dormitory democracy is the Bundy Hall Council, an elective body of class representatives whose primary function is that of watching over the males who infest the men's residence hall.

Under President Wood's leadership, this illustrous body has held many a parley, discussing behind closed doors matters pertaining to everything from the search for chaperons for the Tuesday night dances (Women's Gym, 6: 30-7: 30; Everyone invited) to the dispensation of justice for the lawbreakers. Paddling and penalties are applied in closed sessions, but from time to time open meetings are held at which there is an opportunity for each resident to air his pet peeves, cuss his neighbors for raucous radios, and partake in general of that prerogative of democracy—free speech.

In addition to keeping up the magazine stock in the Association Room, this year the council has sponsored several interesting special open meetings, most popular of which was the Ingels-Leland farewell testimonial, which were especially well-attended, partly due, it must be admitted, to the fact that ice cream sandwiches were "on the house."

"The end of government is not restraint but to do good," and under this illusion the Association of Women Students functioned every week. Many ideas and some action developed from these Board meetings. The ideas didn't materialize, so they aren't worth mentioning. Specific actions did include: four special dinners or dinner-dances; magazines for the Association Room; roll call meetings; internal improvements for the dormitory, such as new ironing boards; and "figuratively" speaking, talks to the residents concerning their own external improvement.

Even though we may not remember many things that were definitely accomplished, we realize that the plan of student government is one of the symbols of a democracy, and in delegating to a representative student group the direction of the women on campus, we are endorsing the highest type of government.

Earlham tradition is a sacred heritage, one which needs a strong protection, and it is in this capacity that the Men's Precedent Committee finds its primary function. Membership is limited to junior and senior men, chosen by the chairman, who in turn is appointed by the president of Bundy Hall Council.

The committee acts not only in an advisory capacity, initiating the ignorant "freshies" into all the codes of behavior to which each freshman is expected to conform, but it is also especially adequate in enforcing words with deeds—deeds which quite often are accomplished with the end of a good hickory paddle applied to the appropriate part of an offender's anatomy.

Despite the ominous portent of these words, Precedent Committee members are not really "ogres." Even the most prejudiced freshman lawbreaker, smarting under the paddle, secretly admires these strong and mighty men who temper justice with righteousness, and who administer the precedents of Earlham with an eye toward the achievement of a friendly spirit of cooperation and understanding between newcomers and upperclassmen.

Women's Precedent Committee

"Precedents deliberately established by wise (wo) men are entitled to great weight." The purpose of the Precedent Committee is to impress this fact upon freshmen. After a few days of grace during Freshman Week, the freshmen become acquainted with the various iron-bound precedents by which they live for a few succeeding weeks. This year dangling green aprons, with names embroidered in traditional yellow yarn, graced the fairer contingency of the Class of '44, while their flawless complexions faced the world sans everything. The usual misdemeanors of walking on the grass and disrespect to elders was dealt with in efficient and "original" ways.

This maternal supervision is really vital to the future citizens of the campus, since it creates among the class a feeling of unity (misery loves company) and helps to acquaint them with their fellow students and Earlham's ageless traditions. Thus the committee is not a collection of upper-classwomen with a most warped sense of humor, but consists of those who have the greatest solicitude for the welfare of the younger set.

Behind the scenes of many of those enjoyable evenings that stand out in the memory of the year, was the YMCA. You remember the swims, the Big-Little Brother picnic, the Hallowe'en carnival . . . The President and his Cabinet retreated, in the autumn, to Camp Clements for a weekend of carefree inspiration. Out of that came the ideas for these events, and ideas for other events that unfortunately remained only ideas. But the concrete accomplishments that were distilled out of that week-end's ambitious tentatives resulted in a year of service on the campus, service in a way that was meant to be distinctive, and to supply what no other group could supply. If the Y.M. did not live up to its highest ambition, it did not fail to accomplish many small tasks in a spirit that makes small tasks important. And perhaps the greatest thing they did was the smallest of all—just being a fountainhead for that spirit of friendliness that no organization can sponsor, but that develops among individuals in the community of that organization. And that, at least, is living up to its name.

Little YWCA

"Dear Freshman: Welcome to Earlham! This is a get-acquainted letter from your Big Sister," and with such a friendly letter the Y.W. begins its service to girls, which later extends into many fields. Early this year the "Y" Cabinet held an overnight retreat, and in a quiet atmosphere of fellowship planned the future activities of the Y.W. The Geneva cupboard is always an appreciated luxury (and "necessity") in Earlham Hall. This year special group activities included sings, poetry-pajama parties (Mike reading Ogden Nash and Bea singing "I'll See You Again"). a Christmas Gift Bazaar, and informal teas. In collaboration with the Y.M.C.A., a Christmas vesper service, Hallowe'en party, and several swims were arranged for the pleasure of all students. Thus in many ways, often inconspicuously, the Y.W. fulfills the needs of girls on the campus, serving in whatever way it may help most.

An organization which since 1857 has constituted the pinnacle of extra-curricular achievement among Earlham men, Ionian is rich in the prestige which comes with age and distinction. Membership is elective, with a prerequisite of at least one semester at Earlham, and meetings are conducted once every two weeks. These Thursday night gatherings have for their purpose not only the promotion of a knowledge of correct parliamentary procedure, but also a stimulation of literary talents and a general development of the art of brilliant repartee and the ability to do original thinking. Not to be forgotten either is the spirit of good fellowship which characterizes the society in all its meetings as well as on campus.

Regular contributions to Earlham's social life are made in the form of a fall formal dance, the I-Opener, and a spring closed dinner-dance, plus a cooperative project with Phoenix—the sponsoring of the annual Parents' Week-end. Outstanding in the past year's calendar of chapel presentations would have been Ionian's sparkling program, which might have compared favorably with those even of the class of '41.

This year Phoenix was 85 years young, and carried out in notable manner the activities which have become almost tradition. The fall picnic in the W.A.A. Lodge was climaxed by chocolate eclairs and the initiation program of new members. Imagine the chagrin and pride when established members saw themselves as others see them in "Life of an Earlham Coed!" Other meetings were conducted with the same ingenuity and fun, while some were really serious and "instructive."

The Christmas dinner at Seven Mile

Tavern, and the May Day dance comprised the social functions of Phoenix this year. The society also contributed to Earlham's welfare an entertaining chapel program of organ music by Percy Robbins. Numbers, classical, popular, and otherwise, were included which were found by a student poll to be most popular on the campus (first place: "Star Dust"). Phoenix maintains its reputation at Earlham not only by the ever-popular coke machine in Earlham Hall, but also by the contributions of its members in the meetings and in campus activities.

Democrats

President	William	Wolf

Treasurer	Wayne S	melser

"Words, words, words..." is an especially apt description of a political rally, and such was the purpose of the Democratic Club this year—to rally the students to the Roosevelt bandwagon by means of the spoken word (some people call it propaganda). Impromptu discussions and heated arguments were common campus occurrences, and whether or not the inspired New Dealers convinced their wayward fellows of the justice of their cause, that their efforts were not totally unrewarded was evidenced by the result of the election. This is not a paid political advertisement, so we shall go no further.

In addition to such methods as we have described above, the Democrats introduced another element into campus campaigning—they sponsored a reappearance of State Democratic Chairman Fred Bays' vaudeville show, which proved so popular in its spring debut last year. By these and other more subtle means, budding party politicians, led by those two Democratic spark-plugs, Wolf and Tracy, endeavored to carry high the New Deal banner on the college campus.

Republicans

The Republicans this year were an inspired group, and, filled with a fervor which only a heated political campaign can nurture, they went forth to battle with an avowed goal of "victory for Willkie and political death to all Democrats." Here on the campus, Joe Payne and his cronies ably plotted a campaign to disprove the Democrats' claim of numerical superiority, and, combining words with deeds, provided transportation to the polls for all of Earlham's voting Republicans. Despite the fact that certain wily Democrats "chiseled" a free ride, the Republican leaders succeeded in transporting a representative number of good party men and women. Nationally, theirs proved to be a lost cause, but consoling to them was the success of their state candidates, to which they pointed in support of their contention that the Democratic dynasty is on its way out. Democrats and Republicans alike have found domestic policies overshadowed by the international issue, but the Republican Club still has visions of an eventual victory at the polls.

Not content with mere words, the Earlham Peace Fellowship is one of the all-too-few "discussion" groups who believe in putting words into practical action. Just one indication of the virility of the organization is its steady membership growth during the past three years. Attracting all those who profess a genuine interest in doing something for the cause of peace, this society has accepted the challenge which a warring world has given to all peace movements.

Weekly luncheon meetings, which aired problems such as conscientious objection and the philosophy of peace, were but one activity of the society. Kirby Page was invited to speak at afternoon and evening meetings of students and townsfolk, and another venture, the sponsorship of the H. G. Wells' movie "Things to Come," proved both interesting and profitable.

Earl Fowler's two original plays were met with well-deserved plaudits, and were presented, along with various panel discussions by members, at several communities throughout this area. The peace posters which appeared weekly on the Carpenter Hall bulletin boards were a constant reminder of the cause for which this active group is working.

Restricted to sophomores and upperclassmen, the Social Science Club during the past year has offered a variety of programs designed to interest students of history, economics, sociology, and political science.

Highlights of the year included a talk by Virgil Sheppard of the Indiana Department of Public Welfare concerning "The City Manager Form of Government," an address by Rudolph Leeds, local publisher, on "Threats to the Freedom of the Press," and a paper on "Can Capitalism save America," by Professor Kemp.

Philosophy Forum

Philosophy is the microscope of thought"... "A little thought is like salt upon rice . . . " Lively discussions upon questions of student interest ensue at every monthly meeting of the Philosophy Forum. Originated in 1935, it has flowered as an organization which affords students an opportunity to clarify their thinking on pertinent questions, which perhaps, have not been included in class discussions. Meetings are open to all interested persons, and are organized for effective progressiveness by an elective executive committee. This year, under the sponsorship of Dr. Landon, the forums have centered around the philosophy of college love life, the conscientious objector vs. conscription, and the typical banquet setting.

Some "mute inglorious Milton" may be included among the Anglican's membership of twenty, but at least ample opportunity is given in the monthly meetings to bring to the light of discussion all original work. Programs this year varied from the creative work of students to that of Rupert Brooke, Gertrude Stein, and James Joyce. The annual Scrapbook, published in the spring, collected the outstanding literary attempts of all students on campus. The society sponsored the sale of this and also Professor Root's newest book, "The Way of All Spirit."

The tangible reward for hours of labor in campus journalistic fields is membership in E.A.P., honorary journalistic society. Anyone who has had three semesters on the Post staff, has been chairman of the Freshman Handbook, or Editor of the Sargasso, is eligible for admission into the organization. Inasmuch as this is an honorary society, its social activity is limited to a spring dinner dance.

Classical Club

Although the word "classical" carries to many students a connotation of dust and ancient erudition, the Classical Club has done much to dispel this attitude. In its meetings the organization provides a worthwhile medium for the discussion of classicism, ancient and modern, and for the fellowship of true scholars in their enjoyment of mutual interests. This year the club was entertained by such interesting programs as a travelogue by Dr. Berry of his trip through Greece, Dr. Johnston's story of Marcus Brutus' Christmas, and a delightful account by Mrs. Kraft of the music in Greece and Rome.

School of the Prophets

Once each month a group of prospective clergy and church workers gathered in the home of Dr. Berry to absorb Bohemian tea and cookies and share mutual experiences in a discussion of their problems. Appropriately calling themselves "The School of the Prophets," these young people, and a few elders, found stimulation in the contacts which the meetings provided, and listened carefully not only to the expositions of their own members, but also to such guest speakers as Milo Hinckle, Dr. P. B. Smith, District Superintendent of the M. E. Church, and others.

We were hoping that in this year's Sargasso we would be justified in some more original introduction to the Science Club account that that well-worn phrase "The Club began its year with the traditional Science Club brawl," but unfortunately we are limited to facts, and this year was no exception to the custom. There was the usual "brawl," with the usual menu, but the program was different—and interesting—a joint project of all the science departments, students of which made interesting contributions to the evening's entertainment.

Following the inaugural picnic, fortnightly meetings featured both faculty speakers and outside guests. Dr. Markle, Professor Hole, and Dr. Garner, with excellent slides of his western sojourn, were among the department faculty who contributed of their time and talents to help make the meetings a success. A recent Earlham graduate, Ed McCracken, enlightened the group with an educational glimpse into the "Chemistry of Rubber," and prospective medicos found especially interesting the words of Richmond's Dr. Sweet concerning the field of medicine.

"A picture is not wrought by hands alone, but by thought." Such was the method of the members of the Camera Club, who once a month gathered to discuss table-top technique, portrait lighting, color photography, and other photographic techniques. Out of these forums came several worthwhile projects. Traveling exhibits were mutually exchanged with other schools, and from time to time outstanding prints by Earlham members were placed on public view in the library, indicative of the high caliber of the Club's photographic work. The focal point of the group, however, and their main pride, is the darkroom, which is equipped and maintained by the Camera Club for the use of its members.

In the spring the annual contest and exhibit determined the winner of the R. T. Myrick Award. Even those who did not share in the various recognitions of good work throughout the year shared in the satisfaction which comes when the camera shutter clicks at just the right moment.

If more "Como esta usted's" and "carramba's" were heard on Earlham's campus this year, it was probably due to the increased membership in El Club Espanol, an organization which is especially active in the stimulation of an interest in all the picturesque color which characterizes the Spanish-speaking countries. Few other clubs boast as impressive a list of activities-regular weekly luncheon meetings to promote conversational abilities; fall and spring outdoor picnics; a Christmas party with all the Spanish trimmings; and this year the sponsorship of an excellent Mexican movie, "Las Redes." Viva el Club Espanol!

Despite Herr Hitler's unpopularity this year, Gesangverein suffered no ill effects in its efforts to keep the hearty old German spirit alive, putting into practical use the classroom dictums by means of such activities as fortnightly songfests, a doughnut and cider sale at Homecoming, and the traditional carol-singing at Christmas. The yuletide weather was unbecoming to the season, but even a downpour from the heavens failed to dampen the fervor of the "Stille Nacht" which serenaded many a faculty home that evening.
